Bowlen Moves For Bounty on Coyotes In Southern Alberta

EDMONTON, March 26 (Special) — Payment of a government bounty on coyotes in Southern Alberta is proposed in a resolution of which notice has been given the Legislative Assembly by J. J. Bowlen (Lib.), Calgary. The territory to be covered would be the entire region south of the Red Deer river.

Speaking in the House some days ago, Mr. Bowlen drew the government's attention to the damage being done to sheep, elk and other herds of livestock by rowing bands of coyotes.

The government has announced that a wolf bounty of $5 will be brought into effect this year and $10 for cougars.

ACADIA SOCIAL CREDIT CONSTITUENCY SELECTS DELEGATES FOR CALGARY

CEREAL [Special] — The Social Credit League of Acadia constituency met here Saturday. George Morris, president, occupied the chair, assisted by Clyde Stauffer of Sibald and N. B. James of Cloverleaf, vice-presidents. John B. Lowe, with the help of Wellington Yake, filled the office of secretary. The following were selected as delegates to the provincial convention in Calgary April 4 and 5: Clyde Stauffer, Sibald; delegate at large; A. Shoultz, Youngtown; J. McGee, Acadia Valley; N. B. James, Cloverleaf; R. Bamber, Sibald; C. D. Denney, Cereal; Thomas Pratt, Helmstalde.

Youngtown speakers. Their addresses were both excellent and well thought out. They used charts freely and illustrated their talks with quickly drawn illustrative sketches on the black board. Questions were invited and answered.

You are urged to join in this vital economic movement. If this fails, you have nothing but chaos and slavery ahead! The coming election will decide.

Social Credit Study Group

A meeting of the Chinook and district Social Credit Study Group was held last Thursday, March 21st in the Chinook Hotel. N. F. Marcy, President of the Group occupied the chair. Over 30 members were enrolled. The principal business was the selection of delegates to the Constituency Convention at Cereal on March 23rd; the following being elected: Mrs. Isbister, N. F. Marcy, A. Shoultz and R. Clapperton of Youngtown were the visiting speakers. Their addresses were both excellent and well thought out. They used charts freely and illustrated their talks with quickly drawn illustrative sketches on the black board. Questions were invited and answered.

When the former premier rose to join in the budget debate he was given a standing ovation by the members of the U. P. A. benches, which a few of the smaller groups in the opposition joined. His speech was punctuated several times with applause and when he finished was given the only real standing ovation of the session by any member.

The present session, Liberal, Labor, Independent, and Conservative members joining with the U. P. A. in prolonged applause.

R. C. M. P. against the char acter of Donald McLeod, U. P. A. member for Stony Plain who had some of the police were ruthless in their treatment of the men who had been intoxicated while on duty. Mr. MacLeod had declared the force was too military in its character and training, and to this Mr. Farthing replied that strict discipline was a fact that made for good standnings in emergencies. A well disciplined force was less likely to act hastily than an undisciplined force.

It is explained that some people are ready to attack the speaker or speak against the police. The R. C. M. P. perform necessary and essential work, often while exposed to personal danger.

The grain market committee of the house has been spending considerable time in probing the relief and trying to secure something that will assist the members in arriving at a solution of some of the difficulties facing the grain market. The condition of the kegs in the camps is being heard and complaints regarding clothing, food and shelter at the camps is also being heard. For mornings this week will be spent in the inquiry and investigation whether William Aberhart, socialist credit exponent of Calgary, will appear before the members of the legislature. No announcements has as yet made of the acceptance by Mr. Aberhart of the invitation to speak.

But some word of this may be revealed during the present week.

The debate on the budget is still in progress and is likely to continue a few more days, although nearly every location in the province has heard.

There are several others yet, who would like to have their say about the provincial treasurer's proposal of the session so far.

Edmonton Notes

THE GROWING OF GARNET WHEAT

A technical agriculturalist located in central Alberta with long experience in agriculture in this province writes as follows:

"Personally, I would like to see with Garnet is a few shiploads of sea worthy, high grade Garnet sent over to British millers a chance to thoroughly test good Canadian Garnet wheat. Partly with this thought in mind, I have told some farmers that while I have no particular desire to grow Garnet wheat, because I could not tell what effect the separate grading may have on price, yet if I were a farmer in Central Alberta, I would consider growing Garnet wheat. There have been many varieties of Garnet as satisfactory in Central Alberta, particularly the district west of the Calgary and Edmonton railway, as Garnet. It yields very much higher than Marquis wheat, and is easier to thresh, and stands adverse weather conditions sometimes very much better than Marquis or Reward. As a result the grade is usually higher than either of these two wheats, and I believe there is a very drastic cut in the price of Garnet, the increased yield, earliness, and average higher grading of Garnet will much more than offset any discrimination in price."

The question as to whether or not wheat growers should stay with Garnet is a matter which the grower must decide for himself. The main thing is to keep the pure. Garnet is a well known variety, and the question is whether or not the grower can afford to give up a lot of trouble once the segregation of the Garnet is put into effect.

There are so few new things that interest the public, debates after the different party leaders have had their say that it is difficult to see the necessity for carrying on with it. Each new speaker stresses the same point in his speech, and the audience is interested, which is the outstanding feature throughout the debate. Few members seem able to discover the new and interesting features of the debate.

But they will get down to details when the estimates are taken up, it is to be presumed.

W. Harry Ross, Liberal of Calgary, joined the debate, and attacked the government strongly for alleged losses through the U. P. A. administration of the province's business. There were more echoes of the expenditure on agriculture, the reduction in the rate of taxation and other matters but, while the Calgary member spoke well he did as anyone else had done and contributed nothing new to the discussion.

NANTON, March 25. (Special)

— A heavy dust storm again swept this district, continuing for twelve hours Sunday. In the middle of the afternoon the dust became so dense that traffic on the main highways was forced to a standstill. Summer fallow and fall plowing were drifting badly, in some instances nearly blocking the roads. There was a light fall of snow at 8 o'clock Sunday evening which served to settle the dust.

Is Democracy A Failure?

Articles appearing in this column from week to week have, over a considerable period of time, had two main objectives—to convey information and to provoke constructive thought on the part of the reader. At the same time an earnest endeavor has been made to refrain from discussion of questions which are the subject of partisan political controversy or of sharp differences of opinion arising out of racial or religious views. In the present disturbed state of the world, when practically every financial, economic and social question has become part and parcel of some political creed it is no easy matter for any writer, unless he confines himself to meaningless platitudes, not to appear to take sides and express views which others may interpret as somewhat partisan in character one way or another. Notwithstanding this difficulty an honest effort has been made in this column to steer clear of partisanship while at the same time in discussing matters of public interest to give some point and value to these articles.

The writer is firmly convinced that what is needed at all times, and never more so than at present, is adherence to well grounded sound principles, the dissemination of accurate information, and clear constructive thinking on the part of each individual citizen. A demagogue may be clever and interesting and able to sway a mob, but he is not a safe and constructive leader and a mob is a dangerous thing.

This week we propose to submit a few questions, but do not intend to answer them. Rather our object is to have the reader answer them for himself in his own words, or even his own thinking.

General Hugh Rodman, director of Roosevelt's NRA programme, stated the other day that "democracy is the best government in the world for peace and prosperity, but it is the worst government in the world for a great war or a great crisis." Is this true, and if it is true what does such a statement or situation imply? Does it mean that democracy as a system of government is right, but that the people who constitute the government are weak, and unreliable, and therefore cannot be trusted? Is it the system of the people who are weak? Does it mean that when things are proceeding smoothly and the people have a minimum of worries, they are careless, thoughtless, indifferent? Does it mean that when a crisis develops these same people become panic stricken, emotional and reckless, ready to act precipitately without taking thought of the ultimate consequences of their action?

General Hugh Rodman, if true, imply that the nations of the world should abandon democracy as a system of government and revert to more autocratic and dictatorial forms of government, thereby relinquishing the political freedom which is now theirs, and entrusting to such more autocratic governments full control at all times, in peace and prosperity as well as in times of emergency and crisis?

Democracy is not to be abandoned because we are not to accept Communism, Fascism, Socialism, or other forms of government which involve abandonment of existing democratic political rights and freedom, how is democracy to be made safe for the world at all times, because it cannot be thrown into the discards in times of trouble and emergency and resurrected and made to function efficiently in the event of the crisis passing?

Democracy is not to be abandoned with the exception of what is termed the Industrial Revolution of the Nineteenth Century; human society was completely reorganized.

The worker has risen from his old feudal state and there has been an extraordinary rise in wage levels and living standards.

With this rise of the economic status of the worker there has been an even more pronounced rise in his social and political status. Public schools, newspapers, labor unions and the like, wage-earners as consumers now demand the political power of the workers as primary producers.

The universal ballot, without property or educational qualification, have given control of government to the masses of the people.

Commenting on this development a professor of economics in one of the great American universities has written: "Here lies the danger of民主 to democracy. It has been often said that democracy, in an absence of economic knowledge, vacuous theories, and self-seeking politicians may guide and direct it into perilous paths. Nobody wants to throw back this tide of democracy. Nobody can. But it needs to learn self-control and to gain understanding. It has neither at present."

Is this professor of economics right? Is democracy endangered by lack of self-control? Is it the lack of understanding that many people who have the most to lose and suffer if democracy fails that they will have the most to gain and enjoy if democracy is maintained and made to function in times of emergency and crisis as well as in times of peace and prosperity? In a word, are our present political rights and power under democracy to be unthinkingly utilized in a time of stress and emergency to overthrow and destroy democracy itself? Are people going to prove the truth of General Johnson's observation that democracy is not a safe system in times of crisis?

How can people be taught self-control in times of emergency? How can the tendency to panic be overcome? How can understanding be given to the masses so that they will refrain from panic and exercise self-control and thus overcome the crisis and prevent the taking of disastrous action? How will these and other questions be answered? Those who work with an oil or other engineer, ever ready to understand and mislead the masses, are these masses of voters who to-day control all governments, going to be educated to think for themselves, refrain from being influenced by mob psychology, and exercise self-control through the obtaining of sound knowledge and an understanding of basic irrefutable principles?

Is the task too great? Is it for man and himself? Or must we cover the state from which it has struggled upward through the centuries and make confession that, being incapable of self-government in the mass, there is only one thing to do and that is to respond its trust and place the power which the masses now possess in the hands of a few to exercise full power, direction and control over them? Finally, if this is done, will the masses remain content to have it so, or will the old struggle continue, all over again?

This is the acute problem facing the world to-day? Democracy itself must and will answer it. Will that answer be for its own preservation, or will it be for self-destruction?

Not a drug . . . safe, effective, economical!

Stop sour stomach, bad breath, headaches and all constipation ills. You can do it easily, cheaply with Quaker Bran.

Remember, Quaker Bran is different from all prepared bran cereals. It is pure bran, uncooked—untreated—unadulterated. For these reasons it is definitely richer in mineral and vitamin content.

Yet it is effective. It works with nature to produce normal, healthy bowel movement...persuading the intestinal muscles to normal activity.

Bells Rung Electrically

Italian Villagers Looked For Miracle Until Mystery Solved

When they heard the bells of the little church of Sante San Pietro ringing for a number of days and nights, apparently by themselves, the villagers of Lucca, Italy, thought it portended a miracle. The clappers of the bells were tied and the parish priest locked the bell tower and put the key in his pocket. But still the bells went ringing. Finally the local electrician discovered the bells were being rung electrically as the overhead wire for the tramway line between Lucca and Maggianno had come into contact with the belfry. Now the villagers are able to sleep again.

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his friends declared he would never work again. Although he is 70 years old, he says they were wrong. Read what he says:

"I am seventy years of age. Last Christmas I was completely doubled up with rheumatism. I could not wash myself or brush my hair myself. People said I should never work again. I am working harder than a young man to-day. Thanks, many thanks, to Kruschen Salts. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to many others. I can get in out of bed myself, nor sit down in a day sometimes. Kruschen Salts have done it!" —G. J.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of a condition of disease in the body. The two ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels of elimination. There are other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation, not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

Chauffeur, Cook, And Maid Inherit Mansions Of Mistress

A chauffeur and his wife, a cook and an "upscale girl" are masters and mistresses of an estate at Newton, Mass., in which a few days ago they were servants.

The will of their late employer, Mrs. Jessie A. Goddard, 80, left them the stately mansion to do with as they saw fit.

Heirs to the estate were William Wilson, for 25 years Mrs. Goddard's chauffeur; his wife, Annie; Miss Margaret Macaulay, cook; and Miss Diane Douglass, maid.

Other bequests, totalling $200,000, were distributed to friends, former servants, charities, churches and distant relatives.

Fruit-a-tives bring lasting relief after he had suffered badly from indigestion. He wants other sufferers to know he is well now. This is not a statement of opinion, but a fact.

And in order that everyone may be convinced of its absolute truth Mr. Sansom has made this statement public:

"For a long time I suffered badly from indigestion. I tried everything but I continued to get worse. A friend of mine suggested fruit-a-tives. After taking them, it was not long before I was entirely well and could eat anything without pain or after effects."

Cheerful Factors

Moderate Improvement Shown Is Expected To Continue

"The moderate improvement reported a year ago may be expected to continue," the fourth annual "Farm Outlook for Saskatchewan" prepared by Dr. William Allen and Professor E. C. Hoyle of the department of farm management of the University of Saskatchewan, predicted. Wheat doubtful but more likely to rise than decline, some improvement over last year in prices for beef cattle, dairy cows and butter, rising prices for sheep and work horses, and a rise in wool towards the end of the year, are some of the cheerful factors indicated.

Prof. John James Rickard MacLeod, 58, co-discoverer of insulin, who spent a number of years teaching at the University of Toronto and the Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, died recently at Aberdeen, Scotland.

With Sir Frederick Banting of the University of Toronto, Prof. MacLeod was awarded the Nobel prize in medicine for the insulin achievement in 1923.

Prof. MacLeod returned to Aberdeen seven years ago to take the chair of physiology at Aberdeen University.

Lives of thousands were saved by the insulin treatment for diabetes which Sir Frederick, Professor MacLeod and Dr. Charles H. Best developed.

Prof. MacLeod was born at Cluny, near Dunkeld, Scotland, son of Robert MacLeod, and was educated at the Aberdeen Grammar school, and at Marischal College, Aberdeen. After a short period of post-graduate study in London and on the continent, he came to the United States. At the age of 27 he was appointed professor of physiology at the Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

Uruguay Imports Potatoes

Although They Plant And Harvest Two Crops Yearly

In Uruguay, South America, they have two potato crops, in which the first and most important is planted in September and October and harvested from December to February, while the second is sown in January and February and dug three months later, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. The domestic crop is insufficient to meet consumption. Imports consist principally of table potatoes, but there is a certain demand for seed. The bulk of the table potatoes come from Argentina. Seed potatoes are imported from the United Kingdom, Germany, France and Spain.

Using Sun For Cooking

Solar Heat Collector Shows At Meeting Of Scientists

A device for making the sun do a part of man's work was shown to the American Association for the Advancement of Science at the beginning of its winter meeting in Pittsburgh.

It is a solar heat collector which, in twenty minutes, develops temperature in excess of 400 degrees Fahrenheit. The inventor is the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. C. G. Abbot. The device can be used for ordinary cooking purposes. Dr. Abbot has been using it on Mount Wilson (California) for the generation of steam for power. It is hoped that ultimately it can be made to drive large steam engines at a practicable cost.

The apparatus employs a number of small mirrors fixed at right angles to the earth's axis and mounted on a frame which will turn on an axle parallel to the earth's axis. There are a number of tubes filled with black oil and protected from loss of heat by double vacuum jackets. These transmit the collected heat to a reservoir of oil, and into this reservoir ovens are inserted for cooking purposes or a tubular boiler for generating steam.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and I fear Carr, your partner, is driving us into bankruptcy."

And Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now, returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of it.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute and says he is still carrying him, and Edith refuses his promises with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and when Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle, he sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows him an old map.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyot Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the наркотик, had taken to the broken spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows him an old map.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to the man who was shot. Stone had found Stone thinks it is a solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory, which proves correct, and that the first entry in the notebook mentioned in the prospector's notebook. As they return to the ranch, they meet Dustin leaving the house, who unsuccessfully tries to ride down Stone.

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

When it comes to "milk of magnesia," that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia" for your child."

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this: the finest milk of magnesia for your child.

It is often necessary to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. If you do, make sure it is safe and in the interest of the public health, it must be Phillips'.

the court-house door. Dustin's finger crept in the shadows and another figure joined him; the loose, shambling shape of Peyot Gregg.

"See that man, Peyot?" Dustin pointed to Stone. "That man has come in to meet the man Gerald Keene, who comes on the night train. The man will call himself Keene, but his right name's Kane. You see, the old man found a gold mine and it was on the Horse-games land. This nephew wants to find it. If he finds it . . . you'll hang. Don't forget that. I'll be at the hotel when you're ready to go back to the Broken Spur."

Peyot gave him one frenzied glance and his right hand sought his coat pocket. Dustin gave a little gasp. The man was half-crazed with fright and murderous intent. Dustin grabbed him by the arm. A little white foam lay in the corners of Peyot's mouth and his eyes glared with a light there was no mistaking. After a dozen of those infernal elgrettes Peyot was ready to kill and Dustin knew it.

"Don't you take a chance," he muttered. "Don't pull anything at the station or in public where people can see you. Wait! You'll be sure to get a chance in the dark if you wait. I'd trail 'em if I were you and choose some dark place. Of course I don't know what you're plannin'. . . . You're a damned fool, Peyot."

He sauntered off in the dusk and Peyot, half walking, half reeling, headed for the little station.

Stone had already picked up Carr and Crewe and was waiting at the station when the train came in with a sheet of flying sparks from the hard-set brakes. Stone himself was the first to leap to the steps of the Pullman and was almost knocked off his feet by the rush of a man who did not wait for the train to stop.

"Duro . . . Duro Stone, by the gods! . . . A great hand smote Stone on the head, almost knocking him over. "Who's with you? We must get together . . . ."

"Wait a bit . . . ." Stone muttered between his teeth. "Here's your present partner. . . . We'll have to get together as soon as we can. I've got a lot to tell you. We need two heads here . . . ."

The crowd prevented any exchange of confidences and then Crewe came up with old Joe Carr.

"Mr. Carr—" Stone grabbed Joe by the arm—"you wanted to meet Mr. Keene . . . ."

A hand thrust forward and old Carr seized it. This was Gerald Keene, the nephew of his old-time partner, Gerald Keene, the only man who could help him in his hour of trouble. He shook that hand as one might snatch at a life-preserver flung in roaring seas.

"I'm glad to see you," he said, "you don't know how darned glad I am to see you. We've got a lot to talk over this very night."

"How about some grub, sir, first of all?"

"Fine. And after that we'll have a few drinks at the Silver Dollar and then home to the Hour-glass."

Those last words reached Peyot, standing among the freight. He was still, however, the party would disclose the fact that he, Peyot, had killed him. The result was plain.

He had heard these men say that they were going to the Silver Dollar and, of all places, the Silver Dollar was the most satisfactory for the carrying out of his plans. Of course he could not go brazenly into the bar and shoot down the bartender. Gerald Keene. That was not necessary. Some subterfuge must be devised. He felt in his pocket to assure himself that the bandana lay ready-to-hand and moved down Seco's main street toward the lights of the Silver Dollar.

"Of course Keene wants to see the sights," he clamed. "I haven't been in town for a year. I'm a wolf and this is my night to howl, Hell, man! Come on. No one's goin' to get drunk. I just want to play my old favorite 'Cripple creek' once more. Let's get down to the Silver Dollar. They have a big lottery there at eleven."

They headed for the Silver Dollar.

CHAPTER XV.

Peyot Gregg had friends in Seco of whom Sam Dustin knew nothing. For five years he had supposed that he was the sole source of Peyot's dope supply, but that was because Peyot had successfully smuggled his store into the Broken Spur unknown. If Dustin had known, it would have gone hard with Peyot. The moment he left Dustin, Peyot sought out one of those friends.

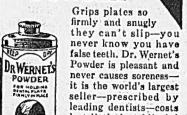

Pascal Mendez herded sheep (and that shows how far Peyot had fallen). Not for nothing does the proverb run "If a man will do that, he'll steal sheep." Many of Pascal's sheep were black and Peyot was not one of the whitest.

In Mendez's jacale, Peyot took account of sick. Mendez was absent but Peyot knew where to find what he wanted. From a hole in the trodden clay-floor he extricated an old cigar-box from which he took a red-and-green package of those ill-favored cigarettes, lit one and sat down to think. The very first puff stimulated him; the next gave exhilaration.

Dustin was a good friend who had given him excellent advice and the future seemed rosy and happy. He passed rapidly from the first stage of half-lifted despair to the next, in which he saw complete fulfillment of his own desires. When he had smoked three cigarettes on an empty stomach he knew suddenly that he faced a golden Kane . . . if only this man Gerald Kane . . . or Keene . . . could be removed. Who was this, stranger that he should hound a man to the gallows?

"By 'Gawd . . . ." The home-made oath satisfied him. He hung the cigarette to the floor, stamped out the spark, felt in his pockets and laid their contents before him . . . the stubby little Derringer pistol and three cartridges nestled, he thought unseen, from Dustin's desk; a knife, a box of matches and a huge yellow-and-green bandana neckerchief that stunk and reeked of the peyot he had been smoking. He very carefully loaded both barrels of the pistol, snapped it shut, wrapped it in the bandana neckerchief and thrust it into his coat-pocket on the right side.

This stranger must be removed! If he remained in Seco, his search for old man Kane, his uncle, would disclose the fact that he, Peyot, had killed him. The result was plain. He had heard these men say that they were going to the Silver Dollar and, of all places, the Silver Dollar was the most satisfactory for the carrying out of his plans. Of course he could not go brazenly into the bar and shoot down the bartender. Gerald Keene. That was not necessary. Some subterfuge must be devised. The teacher asked whether any one could give her a good definition of courage. Only one hand went up. "All right, John, you tell us about toast."

"Toast," said John, confidently, "is burnt bread scraped."

He was too wise to enter that brightly lighted room where a dozen men knew him. From the back door that gave on the littered yard he studied the place.

The bar was crowded with men from the Broken Spur, the Cross Keys and with a dozen "dry-farmers" in town for a night off. The roulette table and the chuck-a-luck stand were doing a healthy business and May Wilson keeping cases at the faro table had her hands full. As Peyot stared in through the partly open back door, he realized that the setting was perfect. All he needed was the opportunity.

Earth Ebb And Flows Like Tides
Of The Sea

A favorite occupation of the good scientists is the carefree upsetting of history, fables, or common belief by the insertion of facts which prove or explain how things really happened.

From time immemorial the good drift regions of earth have been considered stable. Even the Romans famed instigators of tall stories never thought of calling the ground anything but terra firma. Now, Dr. Harlan Stetson, Harvard astrophysicist, tells us that not only are we walking on a thin upper "crust" of a wrinkled old apple called Earth, but even this crust heaves to and fro like the tides of the sea.

Everyone knows the sea has its ebb and flow, but no one guessed that land areas could be affected by such a change until Dr. Stetson said so. With superacute clocks or chronometers, and more careful squatting at the stars, he corrected those "clocks" to the split second and found that Europe and America drift apart as much as sixty-three feet twice daily and come together again by a similar amount. All of which means another time worn tradition is ready for the discard.

But for all the researchers, when Popeye and Barnacle Bill step ashore with their curious "seals," they can't get away with any tales about how difficult it is to get to the billowing waves of land tides after a peaceful jaunt at sea. Nor is sixty-three feet enough of a variation to excuse European or American fluctuations of polity when attempts are made to agree on matters of trade, finance and world peace.—Christian Science Monitor.

Strange Facts About Clothes

Origin Of Many Fashions We Take
For Granted

Why does a tailor place a man's coat buttons on the right side? Because this fashion enabled him more readily to get at his dagger. Why are stockings adorned with "cocks"? Because they were originally put in to hide the gusset seams, when only cloth stockings were worn, and were later retained because they were considered ornamental. Why are men's hats surrounded by a useless ribbon? Because 4,000 years ago men bound a loose fabric about their heads by means of a fillet. Why do Hussars and grenadiers wear busbies? Because they borrowed the original head-dress of Hungarian mercenaries in the British Army. This was a cloth cap edged with fur. Regimental jealousy kept adding inches to this narrow adornment until the cap became all fur except its crown. Why does a man's morning coat bear two useless buttons above the tails? Because coats which needed buttoning up to keep them out of the wind. Why does a bairist wear a black gown? Because, when Queen Anne died all the bairisters went into mourning—and Queen Anne is still dead!

The Ottawa Letter

The political situation becomes more and more complicated. The Prime Minister did not make his contemplated trip south until after his return to his office at the Chancery, with rumour that he may not be able to return to the House before Easter. This may curtail the proposed social legislation and possibly the length of the session, which will postpone the election to June. If the Prime Minister's advice is correct, the election will be held on the third reading of the Insurance bill, Hon. Mackenzie King placed on record in Hansard the Liberal party's stand on the proposed social legislation. The party is still of the opinion that such legislation without either an amendment of the Unemployment Insurance Act or its complete withdrawal, will not be passed, unless being in favor of the principles of such legislation, Liberal members would vote for it. "We refuse also, by voting against the legislation, to give directly an election issue of providing relief to those who are in the tempest of the government's policy over provincial rights a major issue of the coming election would, if successful, endanger the unity of the dominion." The Unemployment Insurance bill has at this stage been introduced at a good deal of debate in the first committee stage. In accord with Mr. King's promise to expedite the reform measures the Liberal members had little to say on the provisions of the bill, but the third reading saw the Hon. Mr. Nelligan offer rather strenuous objections to some of the clauses. Repeated protests were made on the number and variety of workers omitted from the benefit of the scheme. Mr. Woodworth, claiming that the bill is founded upon the original Act of 1911 in Great Britain and is already out of date before it is enacted. Mr. Garland, F. A. pointed out all the benefits of the insurance for a family of five after compulsory contributions over a period of two years, would amount to $45.60 per month considerably less than such a family receives under the present relief at the present time. When Mr. Garland asked if the House considered that a child of sixteen or under could be maintained on the allowance of nine cents a week the acting Minister said that he had been requested on actual basis, whereupon the member for Bow River retorted that he hoped the authority would have to live on that amount himself some day. One objection put forward by the Labor members placed the responsibility for the employee's contribution to the fund on the employer himself, notwithstanding the fact that this contribution is withheld out of his wages. Major Sanderson, the spokesman for the employer's side, retorted that amount should not be born. They should be two inches wide and the length of the tie should be twice the size of the collar an officer wearing a 15% collar would be entitled to $1,000.00 a year. The member for Peace advised the Minister to keep a firm hand on his over-worked staff in the Woods' building. He strongly objected to armories costing millions of dollars being built all over Canada. He said that the Minister of the Interior in the Liberal government took exception to this. He said the work had been done under his department in the previous government and the quoted figure of $300,000,000 was a total waste. The member for Peace advised the Minister to keep a firm hand on his over-worked staff in the Woods' building. There has been no discussion as yet on the proposed grain board, so interesting to the west, and no further news of the election, nor of the result of the Price-Sheards commission. Not much foundation for predictions of an Easter prorogation.

Mrs. SOLOMON SAYS: "The housewife is the high priestess of the home and her routine duties are the sacred rites of correct living.

Mr. MacInnis (Labor Vancouver) referred to his former complaints of the administration of relief camps in British Columbia and the clipping from a Vancouver paper to the effect that 28 relief camp deserters in that city, being given the option of returning to the camps or serving three months in jail, had chosen the latter. He said that the theory of a relief camp worker may take a grievance to the foreman and if he does not get satisfaction he may file a grievance with the Superintendent but in practice it is the foreman who is most likely to be blamed. "The foreman is an 'agitator' and if anything more is heard from him he will have to leave the camp. This will be followed by many other foremen in all the other camps but each will be forced to leave the cities. The federal government cannot do anything about the situation because relief administrators are not responsible and the provincial authorities will not interfere because they are afraid the financial assistance from the federal govt. will be withdrawn. I suggest that the officials of the department work very hard to make things easier for the man in the camp and less time to consider the length of ties worn by the officers at mess, things would go much better than they are going at present." Mr. K. C. (Col. Fraser Valley) said he thought conditions in the camps had been much exaggerated by previous speakers from British Columbia and he realized that some changes in procedure were necessary but against the men given useful work was a fair wage and allowed to pay their way. "They might not be as well off but they would be a great deal happier," declared Mr. Barber. The Minister of National Defence provided the committee for a storm, although the members said their criticisms were not directed against the new Minister (Hon. Grote Smith) personally but against the policy of the government. Senator Carson (Lib. B.C.) assailed the government's policy in maintaining an elaborate permanent force in Canada. He noticed an increase of $117,136 in the cost for salaries and allowances, and asked if the salary of the Chief of Staff (Gen. McNaughton) had been increased recently from $80 to $100,000 a year. He also read a circular sent out by Lt. Col. Bow of the Department of Railways an item of $200,000 for promotion of tourist traffic produced a lengthy discussion, the Minister (Dr. Mairion) giving a comprehensive survey of the work done last year and the plan for the year. He said that in 1929 the tourist business had been worth some $300,000,000 to Canada but owing to the depression this had dropped to $117,000,000 in 1930 and this was due to the depression. The announcement being initiated by Senator Dennis, with full co-operation by the government. He said governments in the past had been remiss in promoting the traffic and in 1929 the Minister of the Interior in the Liberal government took exception to this. He said the work had been done under his department in the previous government and the quoted figure of $300,000,000 was a total waste. The member for Peace advised the Minister to keep a firm hand on his over-worked staff in the Woods' building.
